Publication

The Tennessee 811 magazine is mailed to more than 10,000 stakeholders each quarter. The addresses are confirmed as deliverable by the USPS each mailing. The Tennessee 811 magazine deals primarily with Tennessee issues by focusing on its people, solutions and innovations. The focus of every issue is people working together so as to keep Tennessee a safer place to live and work. In addition to the mailing, the magazine is distributed at damage prevention and safety meetings across the state.

Readership

Our mailing list is the people you are trying to reach. The bulk of the list belongs to Tennessee 811 and includes the members and users of the one call system. Additionally other stakeholders are included in the list outlined below.

Members

Owner/operators of utility systems across the state, including gas pipeline/distribution, water/sewer, communications, electric and the locators who protect the underground facilities.

Users

The excavators (in many cases different departments of some of the largest utility companies) who call before they dig are on the mailing list. These excavators range from the largest contractors to some of the smallest across the state, but are defined as calling at least once a month, in other words a professional excavator who buys, rents or maintains equipment.

Other stakeholders

Every county supervisor
Every mayor
State legislators
State and Federal regulatory personnel
